Abstract

Honesty, decency and good behaviour – are you fit to conduct business in the current financial climate? Integrity at work is an innovative, interactive workshop focusing on the challenges posed by real business dilemmas.

This session will draw on genuine case studies, and you will be invited to decide your response to each situation using interactive voting machines. You will also get the chance to discuss and debate the merits of each choice, and suggest actions that could be taken in similar situations.

About the presenter

Rebecca Aston (nee Doodson) is Manager of Integrity and Ethics at the Chartered Institute for Securities & Investment (CISI). She oversees the delivery of the Institute's Integrity initiatives to members and supporter firms, with an aim to raise and uphold ethical standards in the financial services industry.

Previously, Rebecca worked at the Association of Accounting Technicians (AAT) as Senior Conduct and Compliance Officer (2009-2014), with a particular focus on ethics and professional standards.

Rebecca is a graduate of the University of York (BA Hons, History, 2008) and the University of the Arts London (PG Dip, Conservation, 2010). Additionally, in 2016 she completed a Masters degree in Applied and Professional Ethics from the University of Leeds, and achieved a Pass with Merit.
